PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT-ALTON B. PARKER

Judge Alton B. Parker, who is frequently mentioned as a candidate for dresses of such stockholders, which United States senator to succeed Senshall have the same effect as the ator Chauncey M. Depew of New York, is one of the most dominant figures in American politics. He is a native of New York, having been born at Cortland in that state, May 12, 1852. His father was a farmer and during his boyhood Alton worked on the farm in summer in order to be able to attend the district school in winter.

When he was 13 young Parker enered the Cortland academy, and gradunted at the age of 16. The brilliant leading of a Syracuse lawyer in a case which young Parker had an opportunity to hear, made a deep impression upon him and served as a stimulus to his ambition for the law. At the end of his academic term Parker took up teaching, and with the money thus earned he bought a few aw books and began to study them. He was assisted in his ambition by Augustus Schoomaker, a prominent awyer of Kingston, New York, who took a great interest in his work, and later gave him a position in the law office of Schoomaker & Herdenberg Later he took a two years' law course at the Albany law school. Soon after oung Parker entered his office, Mr. Schoomaker was elected county judge He was defeated for re-election after a hard campaign and was greatly dispuraged, but the ambitious Parker then beginning to take an interest in politics, arranged for his nomination for state senator the following year, prevailed upon him to accept the nomination and managed his campaign so successfully that he was elected. The success achieved by Parker in this campaign brough him into a great deal of prominence and only democrat on the county ticket who was elected that year. In 1883 he was elected with a big majority, running for the second time, defenting the very man who had beaten band' Schoonmaker in the race for county judge. After having served two years of his secon term he was elected member of the democratic state committee and made its chairman. He had been

David B. Hill, then the Jemocratic nominee for govenor of New York. The wisdom of Mr. Hill's choice was demonstrated when the entire state ticket was elected by a majority of about 11,500. Both in 1883 and 1885 Mr. Parker declined the nomination for lieutenant-governor, and when President Cleveland tendered him the first assistant postmaster-generalship, he also declined. Upon the death of Supreme Court Justice Theodore R. Westbrook, Governor Hill appointed Mr. Parker his successor. He was then 34 years old and his record was such a splendid one at the end of the term that the democrats unanimously nominated him to succeed himself, while the republicans did not even pu up an opposition candidate.

Afterward he declined the nomina tion for governor of New York, also refused to let his name be mentioned in connection with the United State senatorship. In 7897 his party elected him chief judge of the court of appeals. In 1904 he was nominated for president of the United States at the democratic national convention being defeated by Theodore Roose

After the presidential defeat Mr. Parker returned to the practice of law and has figured in many prom-inent cases. He is said not to be especially fond of filling public of fices, but is too much of a party mar to shirk duty when his party needs him. He married Miss Mary Louis Schoonmaker. The Parkers have one daughter, Mrs Charles Merser Hall, wife of a clergyman.
